Resolution on Rev. Mr. Dobyn's Resignation

At a congregational meeting at the Presbyterian church, Wednesday evening, Nov. 1st, 99, the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, The Pastor of this church the Rev. William R. Dobyns, has stated to this congregation his intention to tender to Presbytery his resignation of the pastorate of this church in order to accept a call to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church of St. Joseph, Mo., therefore be it.

RESOLVED, That we concur with Mr. Dobyns, in requesting Presbytery to dissolve the pastoral relation existing between him and this church. This action of our congregation expresses the love and esteem in which Mr. Dobyns is held, in that it is taken solely at his desire. It causes us inexpressible sorrow to consent to the dissolution of this pastorate of nearly nine years of unbroken harmony and love between pastor and people. Through his preaching, ourselves and children have been taught and grounded in the old doctrines of saving grace. Under his wise ministrations and leadership, our church has grown largely in members, strength and efficiency and through the goodness of God, only prosperity has attended us. Each and all of us have ever found him a devoted, consecrated pastor, a zealous and staunch friend and wise counselor. In our sorrows and our joys, in sickness and health, he has stood by us; and the severing of this pastoral relation is a sorrow, personal to one and all of us.

And we pray that the blessing of God may attend him in his new field of labor, as it has here.

ANOTHER NEGRO LYNCHED

Howard County Mob Strings to a Limb Tom Hayden for Murder. Slowly Strangled to Death.

A dispatch to the St. Louis papers from Fayette under the date of Oct. 30th, says:

As a result of a cold-blooded murder Tom Hayden, a big burly negro, was taken from Contable James B. Lewis and Deputy Joe Sartain by a mob of white men and hanged to a tree at the side of the road near Pleasant Green, Howard County, last night.

On Saturday night a gang of whites and blacks gathered at an old tobacco barn six miles south of Glasgow to participate in crap shooting, card playing and drinking.

Among the white men was Andy Woods, an industrious young farmer. This crowd of men would work hard all week, and on Saturday night, near the midnight hour, would meet at this rendezvous and gamble. Woods was shooting craps with a negro man said to be a half-brother of the murderer. After making a pass with the dice, Woods pulled off his hat and jokingly struck the negro on the head with it. The latter's half-brother, Tom Hayden, was standing a few feet away, and, without saying a word, pulled his revolver and fired at Woods. The ball entered the left side of his head, and crashed through the brain, causing instant death.

The murderer fled, but the citizens of that vicinity were greatly aroused over the murder, and in an incredibly short time after it became known that the murderer had been captured, nearly 100 determined men had banded together and were intent on hanging the negro.

The mob overtook the officers with the prisoner near the Thomas Gibbs farm, and, presenting guns, demanded the negro.

Fire Alarm Frequent.

The long quiet Marshall has enjoyed from a fire of any kind or even an alarm, was broken Wednesday afternoon about five o'clock, when three negro cabins on South Brunswick, were burned to the ground. The bell was rung and the company called out, but little was the good accomplished, as not only the house in which the flames started, was past saving, but also its near neighbors; as no water connections could have been made for this district, it is lucky that not more of these closely quartered cabins were not burned. Most of the household effects in all three, were saved, though the buildings were burned to ashes.

SCARE AT TODD RESIDENCE.

Thursday morning about nine o'clock, a chimney in the residence of Captain J. W. Todd was burned out, and some of the people of the neighborhood thinking the house afire, sent in the alarm, calling for the fire company. As it was only a scare, there was no more to be done and the crowd which gathered soon dispersed.

Freight Wreck on C. & A.

Thursday morning about 4 o'clock, a west bound extra freight No. 12, loaded with steel rails consigned to Independence parties, was wrecked a mile and a half west of Mt. Leonard. No lives were lost, but the damage to fifteen cars that were ditched is great, three being completely demolished. All the morning west bound trains, together with east bound 10:40 went over the Wabash from Mexico to Kansas City, the way being cleared for west bound, afternoon passenger.
